IMPURE BLOOD WILL CAUSE

Pimples, Boils, Blotches, Ulcers, Festering Sores, Scrofulous Swellings, Abcesses, Tumors, Blood Humors and Rashes,

Or some serious and perhaps incurable disease may result. There is no more frequent and prolific source of illness than a neglected state or impurity of the blood. This vital fluid makes up the sum and substance of the body as it circulates through every part and every organ. If the blood becomes impure, poisoned, or contaminated in any way from Constipation, Biliousness, or any other cause, some especially weak organ must soon become diseased thereby, or the whole system may suffer in consequence. Never neglect to cleanse the blood.

STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin.

One hundred and twenty-five plates will be laid for the great wholesalers' dinner in Lewiston next Monday evening. It will be the wholesaler's best spread. Senator Frye, Congressman Reed, Congressman Dingley and Wm. Henry Clifford, Esq., with the Mayors of Lewiston and Auburn, will be the after-dinner speakers.

The Lewiston Mill Company has been duly organized under the laws of Maine and appears among the new corporations. According to its certificate its full name is "Lewiston Mill Company," principal office Lewiston, Me., capital stock $300,000; par value of shares, $100; president, Cyrus I. Barker; treasurer, T. E. Kurtis; directors, C. I. Barker, E. T. Gile, John Y. Scruton, Ara Cushman, J. M. Robbins, W. W. White and Charles Horbury. Certificate approved April 12th.

Cumberland.

Another new 48-ton locomotive, No. 104, was sent from the Portland Company, Saturday, for the Maine Central. She attracted much attention crossing the city.

Dr. Henry W. Ring, of Portland, sailed from New York last week for Antwerp. He will spend six months in acquainting himself with the methods of treatment by the European specialists of eye and ear diseases.

The trustees of the Orphan Asylum have selected a beautiful spot in Windham as a summer home for the waifs. Repairs will begin immediately on the buildings. Aid is solicited. They will celebrate May day in their new home.

Ralph Kelley's new barn at East Deering narrowly escaped burning on Saturday. A spark from a locomotive set the grass on fire and the blaze had gained considerable headway before it was discovered. A number of neighbors turned out and extinguished the fire before it reached the barn.

Mrs. Alice M. Plummer, wife of Geo. E. Plummer, of Cape Elizabeth, is missing. When last seen she was taking the train at Scarboro crossing for Portland on April 10th. Her friends are very anxious about her and would be pleased to receive any information concerning her whereabouts.

The Light House Department is having a house built on the breakwater for the use of the keeper of Bug Light. It is on the side of the light nearest the city and is about 18x20 and will be used as a dwelling house. Sometimes in the winter it is difficult to get out to the light, and as it is occasionally in charge of the keeper's wife, it was thought desirable to have a chance to live by the side of the light.

The Pejepscot Canoe Club of Brunswick at the present have twenty active and two honorary members. The canoe house, which is thirty two feet long, fifteen wide, nine foot posts, will be finished next week. The roof is to be covered with shingling paper and painted, some artistic color. Quite a number of the members are making their own canoes and are doing very good work. Every active member is obliged to make one cruise during the summer or fall and write an account of it.

The big five masted schooner, Governor Ames, that has been loading with lumber for the river Plate, will sail some time this week. Her cargo consists of spruce and pine lumber, mostly spruce. All the deck load is spruce. The Governor Ames has a net tonnage of 1,689, and according to her tonnage she will take one of the biggest, probably the largest, cargo ever carried out of Portland in any vessel. A great deal of the lumber is wet, and for that reason heavier than it otherwise would be. The lumber has been piled up right and one-half feet deep on deck, and with what is below deck amounts to 1,350,000 feet, an enormous cargo for a vessel of 1,689 tons to carry. Reckoning 12,000 feet to a carload, it would take over 151 cars to transport the load of the big schooner, or a train over a mile long.

Franklin.

Miss Florence Eaton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence M. Eaton, of Fairbanks, though small in number of years, is not lacking in avoirdupois. She is a few months past seven years of age, and while in town last week J. C. Tarbox weighed her. The little Miss tipped the beam at one hundred and forty-four pounds. She measures just three feet around the waist.

Kennebec.

A family which claims the honor of being the heaviest in Kennebec county, is that of William Merrill of Gardiner. Mr. Merrill himself weighs [illegible]. Mrs. Merrill 261, the eldest daughter [illegible], a younger daughter 260 and the only son 215, a total fortune of 1,342 pounds—to say nothing of shillings and pence.

An important business change in Gardiner is the dissolution of the old and well known firm of P. C. Holmes & Co., and the formation as its successor of the P. C. Holmes Company, as a corporation under the laws of the State. The old firm of P. C. Holmes & Co., has for many years past carried on a business of manufacturing gearing, water wheels, engines and other machinery, and have kept a general machine shop and foundry.

W. S. Bayley, professor of geology and mineralogy at Colby, accompanied by Mr. Frank H. King of the class of '90, visited the State House, Saturday afternoon, and packed for shipment the geological specimens which the last legislature voted to deposit with that institution. The specimens were collected by State Geologist Hitchcock in 1861-2, and form the most complete collection of Maine rocks ever made. Two sets were formed, one of which was deposited in the White House and the other given to the Portland Scientific Association. The destruction of the latter by fire leaves the collection now being removed the only one in existence. It comprises some 600 specimens, most of which are neither labelled nor arranged, and the proper classification of which will occupy the professor and his geological class at least a year.

Oxford.

A B Griffith, of East Peru, lost a three year old colt while trying to break it to back, by its falling over backward and breaking its neck. He bought another horse, paying $110 for it, and that was taken with colic and died, reports the Oxford Democrat.

The Oxford Democrat reports an interesting law-suit that has been instituted in Buckfield. A farmer sold his grafted fruit to a well known fruit buyer, who packed it. Now prior to the delivery at the depot and payment for this fruit it was frozen while in the possession of the said farmer. Was the trade fully consummated so as to render the buyer liable for the value of the apples? is the question.

Waldo.

A Waldo County correspondent of the Press writes: "In the town of Troy, a man by the name of Garcelon owns a mare that has given birth to four colts within one year. They are all alive and doing well. They were born twins, the first two eleven months ago. They were exhibited at the State fair last year as a curiosity. The last two were born this week."

York.

Dr. John S. H. Fogg, of South Boston, formerly of Eliot, has offered the use of his homestead and grounds to the Eliot Library Association.

Joseph B. Towne, of Berwick, who was serving a three years' sentence in the New Hampshire State prison for breaking and entering Lothrop's clothing store at Great Falls, has been pardoned. Towne is young, and it was shown that he was led astray by three other men, who planned, and in a great measure executed the burglary, but who, by some means escaped conviction, says the Biddeford Journal.

A Moderate Husband—Good-by, dear. Should I be detained at the office this evening, I'll send you a note by messenger.

Prudent Wife—Don't go to the expense. I've already taken it out of your breast pocket.

As Mr. George Wiggin and his son Fred were, a few days ago, riding up the horseback road leading behind an open buggy, a four year old colt, a dog belonging to Mr. Hawes, suddenly jumped out at the team. The colt, badly frightened, jumped frantically onto the back of the buggy; one fore foot broke through and pushed under the seat, while the other came down over the axle between the wheels and the body. Mr. Wiggin's horse, which he was driving, being somewhat frightened and naturally full of life, it was some time before he could control her sufficiently to extricate the colt, which was forced along some distance in his uncomfortable and perilous condition. The colt received a few slight scratches, and the buggy was considerably damaged; happily no further injury was done.

The ladies and gentlemen who kindly volunteered to give the church its spring cleaning, met last Friday and faithfully performed the task. This kindness is duly appreciated by the church people, at least, and they extend their sincere thanks for the same.

Kingman Letter.

[Regular Correspondence Whig and Courier.]

Last Friday, as Mr. John Scott, of Wytopitlock, was loading a car of posts at that place, he fell from the top of the car to the ditch beside the track, a distance of about fourteen feet, and one of the posts dropped across his right leg, bruising it very badly. It was a narrow escape from a fracture of the limb and will cause him to cease his labors about as long as an injury of that kind.

The Kingman Dramatic Company intend to play the drama entitled the "Last Loaf," at Averill's Hall, Prentiss, next Friday evening, the receipts of which are to be presented to the members of the brass band.

The ice is all out of the Mattawamkeag, and soon the drives will be started. Mr. F. H. Putnam, of Danforth, has the corporation drive in that river this spring.

Mrs. John Haines, of Mattawamkeag, is visiting Mrs. Delaite, her mother.

Rev. J. Day, the Presiding Elder of the Houlton District of the M. E. church, was in town last Sunday, held the quarterly conference and preached two interesting sermons. He also baptized two persons who became members of the church.

Mr. L. B. Clark went to Springfield, Mass., last Tuesday.

Mr. Alexander Leveille, the popular head clerk of Messrs. L. B. Clark & Co., but who is now taking a vacation on account of poor health, went through town last Tuesday, on his way from Vanceboro, where he was visiting his brother. All will be very glad to see him among us once more, in the capacity which he so ably filled.

Mr. Major Lowe has been engaged to run the new engine in the tannery.

In consequence of the "bowling" out of part of the dam, the roll loft was shut down a few days in the tannery last week.

As Mr. Joseph Rogerson, of Macwahoc, was driving home from a party one evening last week in company with a young lady, his horse fell from some cause and broke a leg.

On Monday last, the Linton Brothers raised their large barn. They had a large crew of men, about forty-five being present, to help lift the large and heavy timber. Besides the men, there was a great number of women and children, making about sixty people in all. All note Mr. Linton.

Mary E. Wilkins, A Little Caller, some most interesting items in Jack-in-the-Pulpit, a suggestive sketch telling how a sick boy was kept amused and happy, with illustrations by a young amateur, and (to thousands of competitors a most interesting feature) the report awarding prizes in the King's Move Puzzle.

A glance at the list of contributors will give a hint of the note of the number's contents.

STATE OF MAINE.

BY THE GOVERNOR:

A PROCLAMATION

Agreeably to the provisions of the Act of the Legislature approved March, 16th, 1887, that the Governor shall annually set apart a day in the Spring as "Arbor Day," I hereby designate and proclaim

WEDNESDAY, the 15th Day of May Next,

—TO BE OBSERVED AS—

ARBOR DAY.

And I earnestly advise that the people of this State duly regard it by engaging in "the planting of trees, shrubs and vines, in the adornment of public and private grounds," not only for the purpose of beautifying our villages, towns, parks and public ways, but also for the encouragement of forest culture and the growth of woods and timber, which will be of inestimable importance to the fertility, health, and future prosperity of this extensive Commonwealth. Experience in various foreign countries, as well as in several of the American States, proves the practical advantage as well as the moral and refining influence of tree planting, and I trust that the spirit and intent of the legislative act for its promotion may be carried out with general unanimity and patriotic good will by the entire people of Maine.

Given at the Council Chamber at Augusta, this fifteenth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, and of the Independence of the United States of America, the one hundred and thirteenth.

EDWIN C. BURLEIGH.

By the Governor:
ORAMANDAL SMITH, Secretary of State.

Col. Henry Watterson asserts that "lying is easy." Mr. Watterson ought to be a competent judge after the last campaign for tariff reform on a free trade platform.

Mr. Dunning, the representative of the Associated Press who wrote the description of the great storm at Samoa, says the Tribune, deserves credit for a brilliant piece of work. It is not every newspaper writer, strange as it may seem, who can describe a picturesque and thrilling scene in picturesque and thrilling way, and yet do it with absolute simplicity.

Hon. William P. Hepburn, of Iowa, who has just been appointed Solicitor of the Treasury, served in the House in the 47th, 48th and 49th, Congresses. He was a gallant soldier and is regarded as one of the ablest lawyers ever in Congress from the West. The President believes in putting good men in office and his appointments thus far have been of a high order.

The President has made an excellent selection in the appointment of Hon. Robert P. Porter, the able editor of the New York Press, as Superintendent of the Census. Mr. Porter is a thorough statistician and will bring to the important work intrusted to his direction valuable experience that eminently qualifies him for that position. The appointment will give general satisfaction.

The Postoffice Department has rescinded the order issued during the last administration discouraging the practice by train men of carrying "special newspaper correspondence" and other matter on other than mail trains. This ruling was regarded as unwise and unjust and hence train men will hereafter be encouraged to aid in the dissemination of news. The Department takes a common-sense view of the question.

The Portland City Council declined to appropriate $30,000 for a permanent exposition building. The Press in commenting upon the action says: "A great many of our most progressive and most public spirited citizens will regret that the boards did not see their way clear to erect the building asked for, but at the same time they will not be disposed to harshly criticise their refusal, inasmuch as it was dictated entirely by a desire to honestly discharge their duty as they understood it. Nor will they, in view of the closeness of the question involved, and the room for difference of opinion, unhesitatingly declare the Council's decision an error."

The Commercial amusingly asserts that the Mills bill would have crippled the sugar trust. It would have put millions of dollars in the pocket of the trust; a fact that has even been admitted by the New York Evening Post. Indeed instead of being antagonistic to the trust it was clearly shown during the debate in Congress that the sugar schedule was shaped to suit the purposes of the Democratic head of the trust, who had been a liberal contributor to the free trade campaign fund. The fact that some nineteen different trusts were started in England during the first three months of the present year affords pretty conclusive evidence that these combinations flourish well under free trade, and that the claim that they are the creations of a protective tariff is the rankest kind of nonsense.

In response to an inquiry from a reader who is unable to understand why the New York Herald, while professing to advocate civil service reform, does not agree with the Times and Post, which have criticised Secretary Noble, the Herald answers as follows: "Secretary Noble says that where he finds an inefficient Democrat he will turn him out and put in his place an efficient Republican. There is nothing contrary to a reformed civil service in that. An inefficient servant ought to be turned out, and as Secretary Noble is a Republican he is, in our judgment, right in preferring Republicans to Democrats to fill vacancies. Mr. Cleveland preferred Democrats or those who so called themselves. Under the civil service law the Executive may dismiss any subordinate, but is allowed to select his successor. If it is in the classified service, only from those who have passed examination. If outside the classified service the selection is free. We have no doubt the President and the Cabinet will strictly obey the law. To violate it would expose them to impeachment. We do not see, therefore, how the new administration is turning its back on civil service reform, as is asserted by the Times and Evening Post, to our correspondent's confusion. That reform is not complained, and we heartily wish the practical civil service reformers would try to perform it instead of standing still and finding fault."

Thirty picked men of the United States marine corps, all native Americans, sail for Paris Saturday by La Gascogne to guard the American exhibits at the exposition.

A Navy to be Respected.

[New York Tribune.]

The conduct of the officers of the American fleet at Apia was admirable from every point of view. They did everything in their power to save their ships, and displayed the highest qualities of seamanship. Before the details of the disaster were received it was natural to infer that the British ship had escaped because she had a good supply of coal and was able to steam out of the harbor, whereas fires were out in the other vessels. This surmise was not well founded. The seven ships were under full steam, but only one of them had engines of sufficient power to do anything more than to ease the strain on the anchor cables temporarily. The Calliope escaped not through superior seamanship, but through the power of her engines. Every American vessel was equally well handled, and was lost neither through lack of adequate precautions before the storm, nor through any fault of the officers and men. The hurricane did not come without warning. For forty-eight hours the barometer had been steadily falling, and every warship in the harbor was prepared, so far as human precautions were of any avail, to meet the storm.

When the crisis came every officer was cool, self possessed, brave, capable and heroic. Mullan successfully beached the shattered Nipsic after two German ships had gone down under his eyes and no other resource remained. Schoonmaker and his lieutenants acted with splendid gallantry, and lost their ship primarily through a collision with a German vessel more unmanageable than their own. The Trenton made a magnificent fight, and would be afloat to-day if the fires had not been put out through a radical fault in the construction of the hawsepipes. Even with the engines stopped, the rudder carried away by a collision with wreckage, and the canvas unmanageable, the fight was stubbornly maintained with 400 sailors manned in the rigging to take the place of sails. At the end the American flag was run up, the "Star Spangled Banner" was played, and the flag ship drifted down on the Vandalia to give despairing comrades, who had been clinging to the rigging for twelve hours, their last chance of rescue.

There has been no achievement in American naval history that has reflected greater credit on the service than the splendid bearing and heroic endurance of the officers of these doomed ships. Nature overpowered them, but they fought a good fight and did what they could for the honor of the American name. The habit of sneering at the navy and ridiculing the pretensions of the officers to be an intelligent and skilful body of men as can be found under any flag is one that is easily formed during piping times of peace. The antiquated ships remaining in service and the loss of National prestige through neglect to keep the fleet abreast with European navies have tended to lower the standing of the officers in the estimation of the country. The catastrophe at Apia silences cavilling critics, and sets the real character of the service in its true light. Americans now know that they have no cause to be ashamed of their naval force as a well officered and carefully disciplined fighting service. The ships are hopelessly behind the times and unworthy of a Nation of sixty millions, but the officers and men are conspicuous now, as they have ever been in the past, for courage, endurance and practical seamanship.

The conduct of the Admiral, officers and men on shore after the loss of their vessels was almost as noteworthy as their splendid behavior during the forty-eight hours' battle with the tempest. The German officers were invited to co-operate in the maintenance of order and discipline in Apia, but preferred to leave the Americans masters of the situation. The town was at once policed by marines from the ships; the sale of liquor was prohibited; order was restored with a firm hand; the castaways were housed and fed and the injured were cared for in a temporary hospital, and the most cordial relations were established with the natives without any unwarrantable usurpation of authority or interference with the rights of the people.

All the arrangements made by Admiral Kimberly were judicious and sensible, and no offence was given to either of the rival kings. If the Germans declined to share the responsibility of providing for the orderly government of the capital in the extraordinary emergency which had arisen, they had no cause for complaint and every reason to be grateful to the American officers for stationing a marine guard in the streets and forestalling excesses, outrages and seamen's brawls between the rival naval forces. Admiral Kimberly has shown himself to be, as wise and conciliatory a commander of the naval forces on shore as he was a brave and plucky sailor in his flagship beset with a hurricane.

Beauty

Is desired and admired by all. Among the things which may best be done to enhance personal beauty is the daily use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. No matter what the color of the hair, this preparation gives it a lustre and pliancy that adds greatly to its charm. Should the hair be thin, harsh, dry, or turning gray, Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore the color, bring out a new growth, and render the old soft and glossy. For keeping the scalp clean, cool, and healthy, there is no better preparation in the market.

"I am free to confess that a trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor has convinced me that it is a genuine article. Its use has not only caused the hair of my wife and daughter to be but it has given my rather stunted moustache a respectable length and appearance."—B. Britton, Oakland, Ohio.

"My hair was coming out (without any assistance from my wife, either). I tried Ayer's Hair Vigor, using only one bottle, and I now have as fine a head of hair as any one could wish for."—R. T. Schenitton, Dickson, Tenn.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor in my family for a number of years, and regard it as the best hair preparation I know of. It keeps the scalp clean, the hair soft and lively, and preserves the original color. My wife has used it for a long time with most satisfactory results."—Benjamin M. Johnson, M.D., Thomas Hill, Mo.

"My hair was becoming harsh and dry, but after using half a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it grew black and glossy. I cannot express the joy and gratitude I feel."—Mabel C. Hardy, Delavan, Ill.

PETITION.

Bangor, April 8th, 1889.

To the Honorable Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Brewer.

The Eastern Manufacturing Company, a corporation organized for the purpose of building and operating pulp mills, propose building one in Brewer on land conveyed to said corporation by Messrs. D. Sargent's Sons, and respectfully represent that there is no wharf on the river front of said land, that a wharf is essential for the use of said Company. They therefore respectfully petition for license to construct along said water front, a wharf not to exceed eight hundred feet in length, projecting into the Penobscot river far enough to give a minimum depth of ten feet of water at low tide.

Very respectfully,
EASTERN MANUFACTURING COMPANY,
By C. H. SAWYER, Manager.

Brewer, April 16th, 1889.

Notice is hereby given that, in accordance with the provisions of the Statutes of this State, the Municipal Officers of the City of Brewer will meet at Avery's Mill, so-called, in Brewer Village, next SATURDAY, the 20th inst., at 2 o'clock P. M., thence to proceed to the premises spoken of in the foregoing petition, to view the same, and to take any further action deemed expedient.

All persons interested, will govern themselves accordingly.

For order of the City Council,
FRANK H. NICKERSON,
Clerk of the City of Brewer.

Satisfactory Naval Test

In the recent manoeuvres of the British naval fleet about six vessels of the Archer type participated The vessels pitched and rolled about to such an extent in a moderately heavy sea, as to render their very poor gun platforms which means that the guns were so unstable that they could not be directed with any approach to accuracy of fire They were also very wet ships The defects are supposed to result from the excessive weight of ordnance It is recommended that six inch rifles be replaced by five inch guns and the anchors moved further apart The significance of this report, to the naval officers here lies in the fact that the new gun boat Yorktown, patterned after the Archer, will carry the same calibre and weight of ordnance Failure also attends the efforts of the British constructors to build a 20 knot ship of which the Navy Department here is attempting to build two under direction of the act of Congress

A COWBOY ROBS A BANK

Drawing his Six Shooter He Calmly Removes All the Cash in Sight

A lone cowboy rode off the plains Monday morning in Grover Col, a village on the Cheyenne and Burlington Railroad He dismounted in front of the Commercial Bank and throwing his bridle rein over a hitching post entered the building He walked directly to the window of Cashier C C Smith who tells the story

"The fellow was as politeness a drummer. He smiled at me his six shooter as the man moth machine swept the enclosure inside and rested on a level with my eyes Allowing me an instant to regain my composure he inquired if I would be kind enough to hand him about all the cash in sight There was over $,000 in view I counted him out $500 in gold and bills This seemed satisfactory and my visitor was profuse in his thanks Then he looked about the place and said he would like an interest in the business Seeing a Winchester rifle which I kept for emergencies he grew earnest in manner and demanded the weapon I handed it out but first it was ordered He then backed to the door and leaving the rifle against the outside wall, placed his revolver in his holster, landed into his saddle by a leap from the ground and putting spurs to his horse he was off at a furious speed

There were six persons in the bank at the time but the cowboy did his business so quietly and so expeditiously that he attracted no attention Cashier Smith ran into the street as soon as he could and seizing the Winchester, began firing at the rapidly moving horseman The fellow ducked to his horse's neck in regular Indian style and cut loose with a cowboy yell at every crack of the rifle But his poor shot at best and in his excitement he failed to hit even so large a target as the horse A posse of twelve men are now in pursuit of the bandit

UNIVERSALIST CHURCH ITEMS It looks now as though the demand for pews at the Universalist church would exceed the demand —Rev S G Davis, who is supplying the pulpit during the pastor's illness, is being highly appreciated by large congregations —Easter services will be observed next Sunday. The musical programme will be elaborate —The pastor is now rapidly improving and his physician says that in a week or ten days he will be able to be out and to ride if he chooses

We have received from Mr George H Haynes, the enterprising and versatile compiler of guide books to Maine sporting resorts, one bringing, to the notice of tourists and sportsmen The Rangley Lakes and another the Bigelow and Megantic lakes, reached by the Franklin and Megantic Railroad The books are finely illustrated and contain much information to the traveller and sportsman, and only such advertisements as are of interest to those classes

The steamer Annie, owned by Capt Atwood, of Hampden, which now lies at her winter quarters at Squaw Point will probably be launched the last of the week, and will then be all ready for service She has been renovated and handsomely painted during the spring and presents a very attractive appearance The steamer was very popular with excursion parties last season, and will undoubtedly prove so the coming season, as she is well adapted for excursions down river. Squaw Point will probably be an attractive spot for picnic parties as it was last year.

Yesterday afternoon as two men from the country were driving in a buggy across Kenduskeag bridge, the horse which was young and skittish became frightened at the high scaffold wagon which was being used for changing the overhead electric railway wire, and jumping backward he fell over upon the ground The animal was extricated from the harness without any injury being done Quite a crowd gathered to watch proceedings

BIG CROPS A Newburg correspondent writes Being a man who never uses any dressing except what I have on the farm I want to let the public know what can be done, I raised last year eleven bushels of yellow eyed beans on a piece of ground eight rods by six and sold the same for $3 25 a bushel to a Bangor firm and I raised them without any dressing of any kind The year before when I dressed it with barn manure and planted it to potatoes I got sixty five bushels of Burbank potatoes and they were nice ones If anybody can beat that in two years with one crop of purchased dressing or phosphate I should like to hear from him

GENEROUS AND THOUGHTFUL ACT A touching incident has come to our notice in connection with the recent death, in Hampden, of the little child of Mr and Mrs Herbert Simpson of Winterport while on his way home from a visit to this city, which speaks volumes for the kind thoughtfulness of the physician which attended the child in its illness In order to avoid consigning the child's remains to a hearse he harnessed his own team, and with a man for a driver, took the dead child in his arms as tenderly as if living and conveyed them to the grief stricken home in Winterport regarding the inconvenience to himself and the interruption to his business as nothing when compared with the feelings of the bereaved mother

THE BOYS UNION The annual supper given by the Ladies Auxiliary to the Boys' Union was held yesterday afternoon at the Y M C A rooms Over eighty boys were present to enjoy the following fine musical and literary programme arranged by Mrs F H Noble and Miss Littlefield Piano solo Miss Lena Towksbury, reading, Miss Annie Low bone solo, Master Bert Harriman, harmonica solo Mr Young, reading Mr Thomas Menzies song Miss Mary Morgan bone solo, Master Harriman, reading, Miss Low, song, Miss Mary Morgan Miss Harriman acted most acceptably as accompanist All the performers were at their best and responded to the most hearty encores from the appreciative and enthusiastic audience After the programme came a feast of ice cream and cake also furnished and served by the Committee on Boys Work from the Auxiliary in charge of Mrs R G Rollins Too much cannot be said in praise of the ladies who give so much time and care to this important work for the boys in our city If nothing but the temperance and gospel talks could be furnished the boys many who come now week after week could not be held as they are except through this work done by our ladies The effect of the teaching in the meetings cannot be all lost and doubtless many a boy will have reason in the future to bless the ones who labored so hard that they might be helped in going in the right path

ON TRIAL

Nathaniel S Brawn vs John O Poor et als Action for flowage Plaintiff is mortgagor in possession of a certain tract of land with buildings thereon in Lowell, which he occupies as a farm, that a portion of his land is intervale and was good grass land, and he alleges that defendants own and maintain on Passadumkeag Stream, a dam and mill thereon, that a year or two since a portion of the waste way in said dam went out and in repairing and replacing it, the dam was raised, so that this intervale was flowed out and ruined for grass land, and that portion of his farm became practically worthless Plaintiff was called, and as defendants admitted that the dam was owned by them and that it was the cause of the flowage the title of plaintiff was introduced and plaintiff rested On cross-examination plaintiff testified that two mortgages have been placed on the property both of which were held by his wife. Defendants by their counsel moved for a nonsuit on the ground that the mortgagee was a party in interest and should have joined in the suit For the purposes of this case the Court ruled that as the question was a new one, and the parties and witnesses were all here, he would over rule the motion and let the case go to the jury The question of joinder or non joinder being reserved for the Law Court

OBITUARY

Mr Charles Savary

Mr Charles Savary died at the Windsor Hotel, about seven o clock last evening, after an illness of about three weeks He was first attacked with pneumonia but this yielded to treatment and it was thought he was on the road to rapid recovery until a few days ago his heart began to show symptoms of a dangerous character and which finally terminated in his death as above stated Mr Savary was a bachelor and had no relatives here, but received the kindest attention from Landlords Pickard and Dugan and the attaches of the house as well as from the best medical attention and several of his old friends in the city

Mr Savary was the oldest son of the late Moses Savary, Esq, of this city, and was in the sixty eighth year of his age He was educated in the Bangor schools and at an early age went to New York and entered a broker's office where his advance was rapid until he became widely known as one of the shrewdest and most important operators on the stock exchange He was for a long time connected with the house of Lockwood & Co and many years a partner amassing a handsome fortune, but "Black Friday" which wrought such devastation throughout the country, swept away $100 000 of his property and virtually ended his career as a stock broker Indeed it is stated on good authority that Mr Savary was the man who, discovering the impending panic was the first to give orders to sell stocks which resulted in the wild scenes of that eventful day which have become historical For the past few years Mr Savary has been residing in his old home in this city and his broad acquaintance with and intimate relations to the prominent financial operators of Wall street for a long period of years made him a most agreeable person to converse with, and had he had inclinations in that direction he could have written a history of Wall street that would have been a valuable addition to the library of every financier, Mr Savary leaves one sister, the wife of Mr Jas H Boyd of San Francisco Cal formerly of this city The time and place of funeral have not yet been fixed

Old Jed Prouty.

A play about that singular old Yankee, Jed Prouty, who kept an inn at Bucksport for many years until his death in 1873, is now announced to be given at the Opera House next Monday and Tuesday nights the 22d and 23d instants, with considerable scenery and special effects and with a first class company of New York and Boston character actors and actresses Messrs Rich & Harris, of Boston, are the promoters of the production and Messrs William Gill and Richard Golden are the playwrights The title of the play is "Old Jed Prouty," the name of the principal character, the old inn keeper. Mr. Golden, one of the authors, is to play the leading part. He is said, to have enlarged the personal acquaintance of "Old Jed" when the latter was in his prime. The rest of the characters in the piece are said to have been drawn from the originals and their names are used by the authors of the play. The idea of the production is mainly to afford Mr Golden an opportunity to present on the stage a new character in the character of Yankee, a natural Yankee and full drawn in this section. The play is to be presented in Boston, Philadelphia and New York with the same company, scenery and effects that will be

A GIRL'S MISTAKE

By MRS. G. RIGG-WITHER.

Time sped on. Winter was replaced by spring. The soft Devonian hills and dales were clothed in their freshest emerald tints. The sea was tossing gayly, as if it too rejoiced in this universal rejuvenescence. The garden at The Myrtles was beautiful with the gracious scent laden flowers of spring.

Cousin Adela, accompanied by old Don, the colonel's retriever, was busily engaged in superintending the finishing touches of the gardener, and then both pronounced it perfect. The dark background of myrtles, the hyacinths that perfumed the air, the vivid tulips, the periwinkles, the pale, tender primrose still lingering, and beyond all this the glorious sea full of ambient light.

"I think this is a very happy place, Peach," observed Miss Howlit; "so bright and cheerful."

"It is, mum," replied Peach succinctly. "And these gardens do repay the labor. The colonel and miss will be real glad to see 'em again, I'll be bound. Why, mum, there they be!" as the colonel and his daughter drove up to the garden gate.

When they saw the kind, beaming face and homely form of Cousin Adela, with honest old Peach, and Don's overpowering delight, they both exclaimed, "How delightful to be at home once more!"

"Welcome home, dear Herbert, and you, too, dear child!" Peach and I were only just saying that the spring flowers here were at their best to welcome you."

"And how lovely they are; we have seen nothing to equal them abroad, have we, dad?" exclaimed Carmen.

Cousin Adela noticed a great improvement in her young relative, a gentle cheerfulness, a gracious womanliness, as though she had passed through the fire that purifies and refines.

"Some letters have arrived for you to-day, Herbert. They are in your study."

"Thanks, Adela; I will see to them at once." And he entered the house for that purpose.

"How glad I am to be home again," said Carmen, as she kissed affectionately the good, motherly cheek. "How cloverly Peach has clipped my bower of myrtles. It looks so soft and green. Ah, Cousin Adela, I see you have had the little iron table and chairs repainted. And what a lovely, dainty color! Opal, is it not, or pale green?"

"My dear, Peach must take that credit to himself. He said, 'Mum, Miss Carmen is always a-gazing at the sea. Depend upon it, she likes the color of it.'"

"And what did you say, Cousin Adela?"

"I just told him to paint it, my dear, and this is the result."

"Delia evidently an artist," said Carmen.

"No, my dear. A nice, neat, respectable gardener. But come in now; there is the luncheon bell."

Instead of which Carmen ran after old Peach, who was putting up his tools with careful deliberation. "Peach! the paint is a lovely color. It is just as the sea looks on a still, soft evening."

"Ay, miss, it be. I've watched that ere sea, man and boy, for sixty years, and it's that changeable, but there is times when it looks like mother o' pearl, pink and green, shot like. May so that's what Miss Carmen likes," says I.

"Thank you so much, Peach. It is just what I do like. I have brought you such a smart scarf from Spain."

"Have you now, miss! While I was a-thinking of you, you was a-thinking of me!"

"Yes, Peach, I often thought of absent friends."

"Ay, ay, miss. That's right! Friends is friends, wherever you may be."

Then Carmen having rejoiced the heart of the old factotum, entered the house—"I am longing for my luncheon, Cousin Adela."

"Ah, that's right!" said the elder lady, brightening, for she greatly liked her little efforts to be appreciated.

Col. Massingbird had retired to read his letters; the perusal of them conveyed contrary impressions, relief, regret. There was an inclosure for his daughter, in a strange handwriting, and it was addressed to Mrs. Fitzclare. His own letter was from his lawyer. It ran as follows:

"At last we have heard from our agent in Australia. It would seem from his letter that Mr. Fitzclare has been dead for at least two years. But you will learn from Mr. Frisby's letter (inclosed) the exact state of the case."

[Inclosure.]

"According to your instructions I have followed up the clew you sent me, and it would appear that after Mr. Fitzclare left the Transcaag Station he went up the country with a man named Walsh. From what I can learn they went snipe shooting, and Mr. Fitzclare was bitten by a poisonous snake, and although, with great presence of mind, he cut out the injured part with his penknife (unfortunately they no flask with them), and in spite of the strenuous endeavors of his friend to arouse him, a deathly collapse overcame Mr. Fitzclare, during which he succumbed. He was buried at Puddington, near Sydney. Inclosed are certificates and other papers, relating to this matter; also a letter addressed, presumably, to his wife. It was owing to the advertisements in the various newspapers that these discoveries have now been brought to light, as the man Walsh has only just returned from California. I am, &c."

"Then she absolutely was a widow when Geoffry asked her to marry him." And yet Col. Massingbird felt regret for the poor young husband, who died so sad a death, away from home and country, only tended by the rude kindness of a bushman! After reading these papers carefully through, he thought it better to postpone the interview with his daughter till later in the day.

He brought the letters and papers to Carmen's sitting room, saying, "These have been forwarded from Australia, dear."

Every trace of color fled from her face. "Oh, papa, what is it? What do they say?"

"You had better read your letters," said he, preparing to leave her.

"Stay, papa. Do please tell me the particulars."

"Your husband is dead, and has been these two years."

"Poor Allen!"

Col. Massingbird then read the letters from the lawyers and their agent. As he read on, her face became sad and remorseful; sorrow filled her heart as she thought of the lover of her youth, in all his beautiful manhood. Oh, what bitter repentance was gnawing at her heart at the recollection of the cruel letters she had written him two years ago. She would have given much, if it could only be blotted out of the Book of Life, for him to have died with that bitter pain at his heart. Her unfaithfulness to his trust, "Be true to me, Carman," she fancied even now she could hear the pathetic refrain, and it reproached her.

"I will leave you to read your letter," said her father, as he kissed her tenderly.

"Ah, papa! My deceit is coming home to me now."

"I wish I could bear your trouble for you, child."

"Do, dear, if you can, when I have taken my punishment."

"Nay, nay, love! You judge yourself too severely."

When she was alone with trembling hand she broke open her husband's letter. It seemed like a message from the dead. It was dated July 20, 18—.

"MY OWN DEAR CARMEN:

"I am longing for your next dear letter." The mail is due in about a week, though I know I must not expect to hear quite so frequently now that you have left school. How beautiful your new home must be! I can see your dear lilt, the boudoir, your flowers in the balcony, even the canary, Dick. You are just fitted for such surroundings, and it makes me all the more eager to strain every nerve to make our fortune. But do not, I beseech you, forget me in your gay, bright life.

"The risk is very terrible. But oh! when I succeed, how great the reward!

"I have made arrangements for selling my share of the Station at a good profit and pushing up country. I really am waiting, with what patience I can command, for your letter. I feel sure there is one for me.

"Tell me everything, sweet wife. You can hardly understand what your letters are to me out here—drops of precious water in the desert, the shadow of a great rock in a weary land. I long with a hungry longing to see you, to touch you.

THAT TIRED FEELING

Affects nearly every one in the spring. The system having become accustomed to the bracing air of winter, is weakened by the warm days of the changing season, and readily yields to attacks of disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine needed. It tones and builds up every part of the body, and also expels all impurities from the blood. Try it this season.

We have no hesitation in recommending Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer as a sure cure for dandruff, and to restore the natural color of the hair.

THE OUTER WORLD IS FULL OF BEAUTY

To us in despite of the absence of years
How sweet the remembrances of home
Still appears?
From allurements abroad which but flatter
the eye,
The unsatisfied heart turns, and says with a sigh—
Home, home, sweet, sweet home!
There's no place like home,
There's no place like home.

But the eye grows tired in looking at the manifold and ever varying beauties of nature, and gladly turns to the quiet and not less beautiful Home-life for rest and comfort.

"Be it ever so Humble, There's no Place like Home."

And there is no reason why they should not be attractive and comfortable, made so by the

whose taste and skill have made everything possible to those who desire comfort and luxury. Every taste can be gratified and every pocket consulted by calling at

The G. W. Merrill Furniture Company's
